AT FORT MASON
CAPITAL CAMPAIGN

FOCUS: OPEN SPACES AT FORT MASON

The At-Fort-Mason Capital Campaign is a two-year, $7.5 million fund-raising campaign to complete ten major renovations projects within the historic piers and buildings of Fort Mason Center. The ten projects will preserve this National Historic Landmark, and create new and refurbished spaces for the increasing cultural activity occurring here.

A lot of walking goes on at Fort Mason. The grounds surrounding the Landmark Buildings and Piers occupy a vast expanse of open-air space, where visitors are often seen strolling, picnicking, jogging, or hurrying to meetings.

The Open Spaces At Fort Mason projects are designed to upgrade walkways and create new outdoor spaces, improving public information, safety, and parking facilities. The renovations will take full advantage of Fort Mason's magnificent views of the Bay.

At a total cost of $300,000, the open space improvements will include the Parade Ground, Fisherman's Walks around the piers, patios, and the Bay Promenade along the water's edge. These areas will be enhanced with displays, plants, benches, and outdoor sculpture.

One of the most exciting developments is the Parade Ground, Fort Mason's central open space. This one-acre area, located between Buildings C and D, provides a sweeping approach to Pier 2, and is the major access route for the largest number of people attending events at Fort Mason. The Parade Ground will be re-paved and striped for more efficient parking. The installation of landscaping and sculpture will allow the area to double as an ideal setting for outdoor events, concerts, and fairs. The loading docks on either side of the Parade Ground will be made into steps running the length of the buildings, providing built-in seating.

The Bay Promenade stretches along the water's edge, across the entrances to the three piers. This walkway will be a visually pleasing open space for visitors to stroll and take in views of San Francisco Bay and the Marin Headlands. The Promenade will also offer interesting displays with historical highlights about Fort Mason's piers and the important shipping activity that took place here during World War II and the Korean War. Benches, creative landscaping, and outdoor sculpture will also enhance this important link between the Landmark Buildings and Piers.

Fisherman's Walks surrounding the piers at Fort Mason offer visitors beautiful views of the Golden Gate and Marin Headlands. These walks will be equipped with benches, displays, and facilities for fishermen and strollers.

A Firehouse Patio near Pier 3 will be developed for picnic space overlooking the shoreline. A Conference Center Patio will be constructed adjacent to Building A, accessible for outdoor seating during conference breaks and lunch periods.

The At-Fort-Mason Capital Campaign plans also include the construction of glass portices between buildings, providing sheltered seating areas with views of the Bay. The entrance to Fort Mason will also feature an upgraded Gateway, with new directory signage and landscaping.

The renovation of Fort Mason's open spaces is an important part of the Capital Campaign plan. For more information about the At-Fort-Mason Capital Campaign, call 441-3400.

FROM OPERA TO GARBAGE CANS

SF FAIR CONTESTS

The San Francisco Fair and Exposition competitions (September 4-7 at Fort Mason) put an urban twist on county fair contests. There's fog calling, cappucino judging, and a parking space race on congested city streets. New this year are a "Garbage Can Art Contest" with cash prizes from the city's scavenger companies, and a "Herb Caen Write-Alike" judged by the columnist himself. The winner receives a houseboat weekend for ten on the Sacramento River Delta. Also new are a sewing competition to create a "layered look" ensemble, a contest to create a new drink called "The Fog Belt," a daily diaper derby, and contests for photographers and cartoonists.

There will also be more traditional county fair contests, including judgings for San Francisco honey and garden produce, home-made preserves and apple pies, as well as matzoh ball soup, sweet potato pie, Chinese salads and pasta sauce.

Entry deadline is August 10. A complete list of contests with rules and entry forms can be found in the 1986 Fair Contest book, available at San Francisco Safeway stores, all branches of the San Francisco Public Library, the Fort Mason Center office, and other neighborhood locations. For information, call 557-9755.

FMC UPDATE

Fireworks Celebration This year's July 4th Fireworks Celebration at Crissy Field will be bigger and better than ever. Festivities begin at 2pm with the Opening Procession, featuring the U.S. Army Band and the National Park Service Mounted Police, immediately followed by "The Salute to the Nations," presented by the Sixth Army. At 3pm the free entertainment program begins. On the Main Stage will be top performers including Sonny Rhodes and the Texas Twisters, Al Rapone and the Sundogs, and The Stupids, who will perform "the bottom 40." The Children's Stage will present games for kids as well as performances by juggler Ray Jason and the Walden Marionettes, among others. Finally, around 9pm (or just after dark), the magnificent fireworks display begins. This special event is sponsored by the San Francisco Chronicle and the GGNRA. Bring the whole family and celebrate the 4th by the Bay. For information, call 556-0560 or 556-4462.

Tahiti Fete '86 The performing arts of Polynesia will be celebrated with competitions in traditional music and dance in Pier 3 at Fort Mason, July 12 and 13. Starting off the festivities will be the Kaleponi Hula Festival on Saturday, with group performances in hula auwana and soloists in the Kaleponi Wahine and Kalepone Kane event. Sunday will be a special 10th Year Celebration, with group performances in the Otea and Aparima and soloists in Ori Tahiti. There will also be an Ori Tahiti Classic featuring star soloists of the past ten years.

Island cuisine will be available with a potluck assortment of local style plate lunches and snacks. Hours are noon to 7pm on Saturday, 8am to 5pm on Sunday. Daily admission is $7.00; advance tickets are available. For information, call 227-5435.

Ray Jason—15th Anniversary Show Juggler Ray Jason will host his 15th Anniversary Show in Pier 2 at Fort Mason on Saturday, July 26 at 7pm. The event, Ray's thank-you to the people of the Bay Area for their continued support of street performers, is free, and intended for children as well as adults so families can attend together. Spectators are advised to dress warmly, bring a blanket to sit on, and a picnic to eat. Early arrival is recommended, as the show draws a large crowd.

Ray Jason was San Francisco's first sidewalk juggler. His act combines the equally captivating elements of danger and comedy. His steadily-growing repertoire now includes the juggling of torches, hatchets, machetes, sickles, basketballs, cigar boxes, hula hoops, and full-sized bowling balls. Recently he mastered the amazing feat of juggling torches while blindfolded. His was one of the few local acts chosen to perform for the Queen of England during her visit to San Francisco.

Ray was honored recently by being included in Ruth Asawa's latest sculpture featuring San Francisco notables. He appears in the same panel with Joe Montana and Herb Caen. For information about the show, call 567-2674.

THE WELCOME MAT

Frederic Stout, recently appointed executive director of Media Alliance, considers the organization "critically important to both the Bay Area and to me personally. It's the single activist organization that ties all the strings together." Founded in 1975, Media Alliance—like many nonprofits—has had financial problems necessitating cutbacks in staff and membership services. But Stout considers reports of MA's imminent demise to be "greatly exaggerated." The financial problems are real, but "manageable given time and some old-fashioned hard work."

Stout has already put in four years of hard work as an active member of MA, and has taken on his new responsibilities out of concern for the organization. He thinks it is "time Media Alliance members. . . started focusing on creative ideas and new visions of Media Alliance's future." Stout plans to work on solving MA's immediate problems, mostly financial, and to establish administrative processes that will allow its services and program activities to operate smoothly and efficiently.

With a grant from the San Francisco Foundation, MA has hired its first full-time financial manager. Its current operating budget is running on a pay-as-you-go basis. And a "Friends of Media Alliance" campaign is underway, aimed at soliciting contributions of $500 and $1000 from fifty major Bay Area corporate giving programs. MA's program of skills classes, public forums and social events is growing, the jobfile service has never been more active, and MA's membership has recently grown from 2500 to 2800.

Stout's plans for MA include active participation in the formation of a Bay Area News Council to address media accountability and the introduction of a series of graduate level courses on subjects ranging from advanced investigative reporting techniques to state-of-the-art media computer applications. He also plans to expand the scope of MA's role as a media resource for Bay Area nonprofits and local community organizations.

Stout's previous involvement with MA includes consulting on fundraising and program development, and directing the Key Issues in the Media

Symposium Series, the Bay Area Media Accountability Project, and the Propaganda Analysis Review. He has also been a lecturer in Urban Studies and director of the Program on Urban Studies at Stanford University, associate director of the San Francisco Public Policy Urban Field Study Program of Northwestern University, and a reviewer and writer for the San Francisco Examiner, the Bay Guardian, and KTVU-2.

Stout describes his new job as "a challenge, an honor, and a labor of love. . . . Media Alliance can and must become a real, problem-solving force in the Bay Area community, an organization that has a visible, positive impact on the practice and quality of local journalism and media work of all kinds."

On July 30, Media Alliance will sponsor the Sixth Annual Magazine Fair, an opportunity for freelance writers and photographers to meet informally with editors from local and national publications, in the Conference Center at Fort Mason. For information about the event, call 441-2558. For information about Media Alliance, call 441-2559.
